Speakers at Monday Evening Club Declare Churches Fail to Discharge Obligations

"NARROW," SAYS FREEMAN

Pastor of Epiphany Warns of Declamatory Tirades From Pulpit on Labor and Capital

Charging preachers of Washington with being "ignorant, prejudiced and lazy," speakers before the Monday Evening Club, meeting at the Cosmos Club last night, declared that the churches of this city are, in general, total failures in discharging their fundamental obligations of social uplift.

A universal narrowness on the part of the clergy was charged by Dr. James E. Freeman, pastor of the Church of the Epiphany, who asserted the average pastor "speaks in an oracular way about industrial and social problems, without a large knowledge of either, and to the shame of the church."

"I feel that the men, of my order should be warned against the practice of indulging in declamatory tirades and unconsidered judgments from the pulpit," he declared, "particularly as they relate to the problems of capital and labor."

SAYS CHURCHES ARE LAZY.

Mrs. Archibald Hopkins, president of the Home for Incurables, asserted that laziness characterizes the churches and church members of virtually every denomination in Washington.

"There are less than 5,000 who contribute to the work of the Associated Charities," she asserted. "The churches are lazy. Their members are lazy. They are neglecting the very work which they are organized to do."

A report on "The Church and Social Service in Washington," submitted by Dr. Larkin W. Glazebrook, chairman of the committee, which has investigated conditions states:

"There are religious bodies in Washington that apparently have no sense of community responsibility, and that give their members no social work of the community."

QUERIES IGNORED BY 300.

During the period of investigation the committee sent out questionnaires relating to welfare work to 325 preachers. Replies were received from twenty-seven.

Dr. Abram Simon, rabbi of the Eighth Street temple, asserted that the social service idea has been identified with the Jewish religion for 3,000 years. Dr. John O'Grady, head of the Catholic Board of Charities, declared the Catholic religion has consistently associated welfare work with religion.

The following new members were received by the club: Mrs. Courtney Dinwiddie, Miss Jennie Elizabeth Doolittle, Miss M. Florence Dunlap, Miss Bertha Dorothy Friedman, Mrs. Mary C. Hobday, J. Miller Kenyon, Miss Mary McNally, Mrs. Henry Marquand, W. W. Millan, Frank Moorman, Mrs. Frank Moorman, Mrs. Fannie French Morse, Dr. Charles P. Neill, Mrs. John Lowe Newbold, J. B. E. Smoot, Mrs. B. T. Voorhies, Miss Helen J. Willett, Miss Alice Webb, Miss Mabel Wilcox, Mrs. L. B. Wright and Mrs. W. L. Darby.

PERFECT BIG BOMB FOR GIANT PLANES

Extensive Tests of New War Weapon Scheduled for Next Spring.

Absolute perfection of the 4,000 pound aerial bomb, to be used by the giant bombing planes now being built for the United States army, will be sought by the army ordnance department during the winter, in preparation for extensive tests under actual war conditions next spring.

No attempt will be made to create the huge 16,000 pound bomb, which have been predicted, until the 4,000 pound size has been perfected for every type of work, officers of the ordnance department state.

It is possible that various modifications of the bomb may be made for different types of work. One type, it is indicated, will be developed for exclusive use against warships. Another will probably be devised for use against land targets, such as forts, railroad centers, munitions plants, and important water terminals.

The development of an armor-piercing bomb of this size may be attempted has not yet been determined. It is explained that there is not at present any great need for this type of projectile, although it may become necessary as defenses against aircraft bombs are developed.

Extensive bombing tests are being conducted by the army at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds, where every effort is being made to perfect the bombing sight for aerial use under all conditions and to determine the best form and type of guiding vanes for bombs of the various sizes and types.

The 4,000 pound bomb, which contains approximately one ton of high explosive, has been put to test at Aberdeen and has proved the most terrible weapon of its kind ever used by man. Such a bomb, army officers declare, would "lift a ship out of the water" and would, if dropped within thirty yards of the most heavily armored battleship afloat, instantly wreck it, starting the plates so badly that the ship would not remain afloat five minutes.

In proof of this contention they point to the sinking of the "non-sinkable" German dreadnaught Ostfriesland by army bombers off the Virginia capes a year ago last July. Two 2,000 pound bombs, of just half the power of the huge 4,000 pounder, exploded off the stern of the German ship, sent her to the bottom in fourteen minutes.

Wind Mill Dance Latest to Take Paree by tSorm

Partners Clutch Hands and Advance With Circular Shoulder Motion.

By BASIL D. WOON. (Special Wireless to Universal Service.)

PARIS, Nov. 20.—The "windmill dance" is the latest thing to take Paree by storm. It was advocated today by Dr. Paul Lenard as "the best exercise ever invented for development of the female figure."

The new creation is danced to slow shimmy time. The partners clutch hands and advance with a variation of the fox trot step, at the same time working the arms forward and back alternately so as to give a circular motion to the shoulders.

The dance is very graceful when properly danced, and experts who have seen it claim it is the first really new thing in dancing since the invention of the one-step.

Dr. Lenard recommends "wind-milling" for a half hour twice daily in preference to any other exercise.

CHINESE ROW WITH JAPAN AT SHANTUNG

Latter's Demands for Finest Buildings for Consulates Called Preposterous.

By THOMAS MELOY. (International News Service.)

PEKING, Nov. 21.—Bitter controversy has arisen between the Chinese and Japanese committees for the return of public property in Shantung. The Chinese allege that the Japanese demands are preposterous and refuse to yield further.

The question in dispute is the provision of the Shantung treaty, section 2, in which the Japanese reserve the right to retain sufficient buildings for their consulate and such additional ones as are "required of the Japanese community, including public schools, shrines and hospitals."

For the consulate the Japanese have demanded the former residence of the Taingtao governor, which is considered the finest building in the city. They also want the courthouses for their consular courts, a special residence for the consul and for each of the three vice-consuls and adequate housing for the two under consuls, a dozen or more clerks, fifty police and special quarters for the police officials.

The Chinese say that there never was a consulate in the history in China which occupied a fourth of this territory and that the property demanded runs to millions of dollars. Besides, they assert that the former government mansion must be occupied by the Chinese governor, and they have offered the former Posts and Telegraphs building in its place.

The Japanese reply that their consulate in Tsingtao is something apart from other consulates and must overshadow others, so that the dignity of the Japanese empire may be maintained. Then also allege that the Posts and Telegraphs building had already been promised by them for Great Britain and that the Chinese should not embarrass them now by refusing.

In the matter of shrines and cemeteries the Chinese insist on limiting the areas to those actually in use and not including the lands in the stomachs of the Japanese, gardens, residences and storehouses. The total Japanese claim is said to be in excess of fifty acres.

Still a further controversy has arisen over the matter of hospitals. There are three hospitals in all—the former German hospital, a general hospital and a maternity home. The first is by far the best, and the Chinese have offered to cede the other two. But the Japanese want it and point with pride to the fact that the equipment is now all Japanese and must in any case be purchased by China.

The former German equipment, both of the public works, has been taken away by the Japanese and their own substituted. China demands that the German property be restored. Japan says it belongs to her by virtue of the "spoils of war" and is used by the argument that these "spoils of war" are occupied by the Treaty of Versailles to thirty million dollars, and this China is paying.

SECRECY SHROUDS NEAR EAST PARLEY

Star-Chamber Session Marks Opening of Conference at Lausanne.

U. S. OBSERVERS ON HAND

Presence Indicates Strong Interest of Government in Deliberations.

By FRANK E. MASON. (International News Service.)

LAUSANNE, Nov. 20.—The critical interest shown by the American observers at the opening of the Near East peace conference made it evident tonight that the United States plans to play more than a perfunctory part in the deliberations even though the decisions will be worked out in secret.

Even before the first session adjourned, to meet again Tuesday morning, it was plain that secret diplomacy, so bitterly flayed three years ago in Paris, was coming back into its own.

The conference is going to be dominated by a triumvirate composed of Premier Poincare of France, Lord Curzon, British foreign secretary, and Benito Mussolini, the aggressive premier of the Italian Fascist government.

Ismet Pasha, who was the third speaker of the day, opened up in a conciliatory strain. He said: "The nationalist program seeks only to assure the prosperity of the country. It seeks only to insure peace and to safeguard our peoples from outside attack and intrusion. We Turks came to Lausanne with peace in our hearts. We came with good will and the wish to co-operate with the other powers to restore peace in the Near East."

"Peace by Christmas" was the keynote of the speech of Robert Haase, president of the Swiss Republic, who opened the conference.

Lord Curzon, head of the British delegation, replied to the address of welcome.

"I hope that this will prove the last of the numerous conferences I have attended in the past four years to conclude 'final peace,'" said Lord Curzon earnestly.

The allied powers were in accord when the meeting opened and Lord Curzon outlined the program that had been drawn up to meet the direct demands of the Turks. This program is in two sections of fifteen total points. The first ten deal with political and territorial questions; the last five with financial and economic issues.

FRENCH FEEL PERIL OF TOO FEW BABIES

Nation With Population Declining Sure of Attack, Says Scientist.

By BARON MAURICE DE WALES. (Famous French Envoys. Written for Universal Service.)

PARIS, Nov. 20.—The best way to prevent a future war is to fight race suicide in France.

What can natality have to do with war? Did not the Malthusians preach that the world was not even then too thickly populated? Did not Germany throw herself on France in 1914 because her population, increased from 40,000,000 to 67,000,000 since 1870, was stifling within her borders?

It is equally dangerous for the peace of the world for a nation to have too many children or too few. If it has too many, it attacks its neighbors. If it has too few, it is itself attacked. And the worst situation of all is when this situation applies to two nations contiguous to each other, where the emptiness of one appeals to the covetous instincts of the crowded population of the other.

Germany gained in absolute population last year a total of 700,000 souls. Seven hundred thousand more mouths to feed in 1920. For 1940, twenty years from now, this rate of increase represents—admitting that 100,000 of tender age die—300,000 more soldiers and 300,000 more mouths to feed.

During which time the population of France will have been decreased by 200,000 each year, or a total in twenty years of 4,000,000 less than we have today.

To the record of lack of cradles held by France must be added the record in the number of coffins in use here. According to a statistic verified in nineteen of our departments, 23 in every 1,000 Frenchmen die each year, whereas in Germany the rate is only 14 in every 1,000.

GRAY COMES OUT WITH TESTIMONY

Feels Like a Brand New Man and Would Convince Every-one of Value of Tanlac.

Although told millions of times over, the story of Tanlac is always new and interesting to people who are trying to find a medicine to relieve their suffering and bring them back to health and happiness. Tanlac produces results and that is why so many people are praising it.

W. L. Gray, 305 1/2 9th street S. E., Washington, D. C., says: "If I could I would convince every sufferer in the land of what a great medicine Tanlac is. In my youth ago my stomach went wrong and then it seemed that nearly every thing got the matter with me."

"I got so nervous, weak and dizzy I would shake like a leaf. Why, at times I could hardly hold my knife and fork in my hands. I was always constipated and had frequent headaches and pains in the small of my back. Gas on my stomach caused awful pain and rapid heart palpitation, and the least exertion or short walk would have me gasping for breath."

"My first bottle of Tanlac helped me so much that I bought more and am now feeling like a brand new man. I have a wonderful appetite, eat what I want, and am gaining weight right along. I have not an ache or pain now and am brimful of new life and energy. Tanlac is certainly without an equal."

Tanlac is sold in Washington by Peoples Drug Stores and all leading druggists.
